Can your workplace help us? We are looking for businesses who might like to adopt Ibba Girls Boarding School as a CSR project.

We are also looking for businesses who can help with specific projects using their skill sets and expertise, building support of the School into a specific project.

CSR

Ibba Girls Boarding School has been developed on sustainable principles, with the 72-acre school site being cultivated to produce crops to feed the girls. Solar panels power the electricity for the school, including its satellite link and water bore hole. Another like-for-like bore hole was provided in the village, allowing direct local access to safe water and saving local children hours a day having to fetch water. Rainwater is harvested and the water and sanitary systems are all fully sustainable. Furniture is made from local hard wood, providing employment for local people and the bricks for the school were made using local clay and a sustainable brick making system.

It is also a community project, funded by direct aid through the Friends of Ibba Girls School. It is a life-changing project for the girls involved who are being given a future that otherwise they have no chance of achieving.
